Welcome to The Harley Street Skin Clinic!

Established in 2004 by husband-and-wife duo, Dr Aamer Khan and Lesley Reynolds, Harley Street Skin has been on speed dial to some of the world's highest flyers ever since.

With their flagship clinic based on the world's most famous medical strip, Harley Street Skin has quickly become both a medical and cosmetic frontrunner, drumming up a pristine reputation and impressive roster of celebrity clients.

After gaining the attention of television network, Sky, Harley Street Skin then went on to become the focus of hit documentary series Stitch Me, Lift Me, Tuck Me.

Our Founders

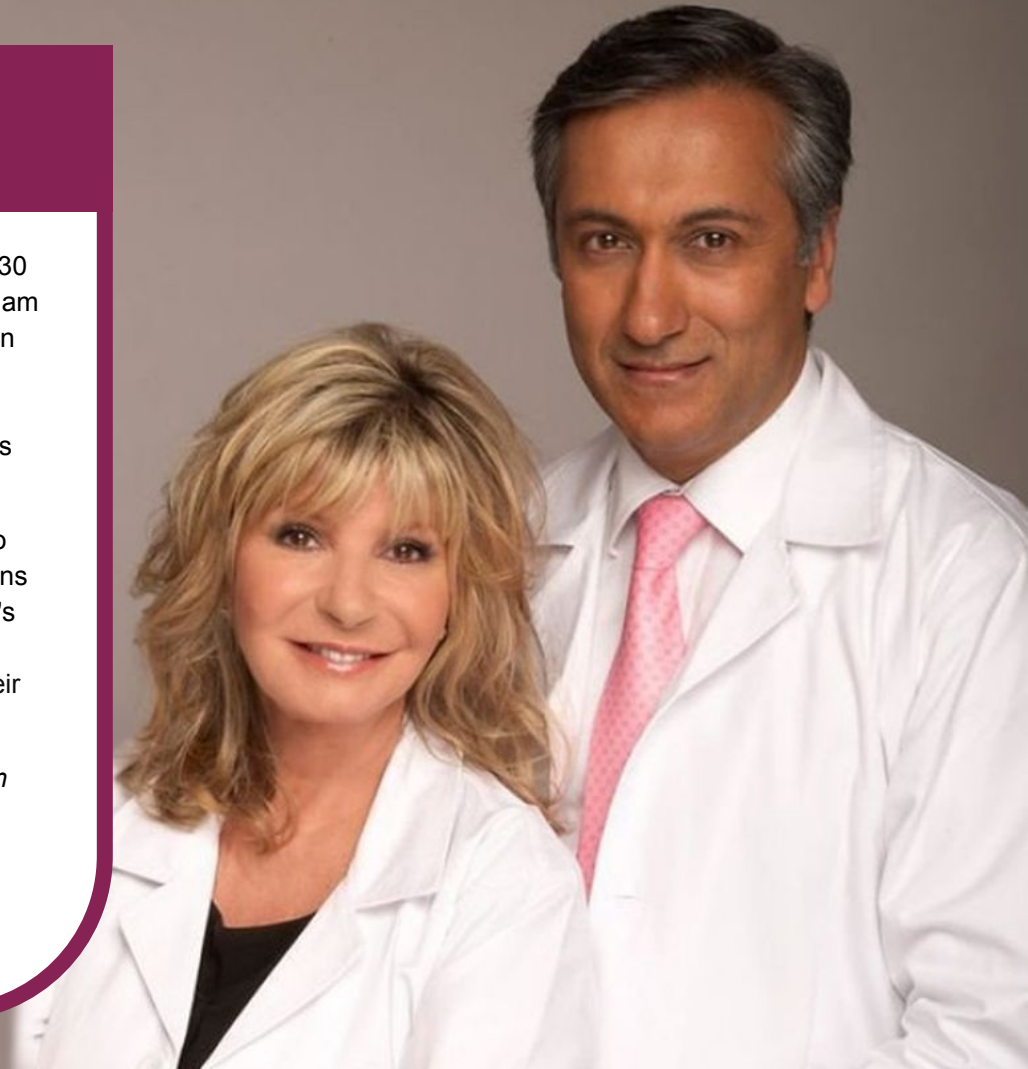

Dr. Aamer Khan, a medical doctor who has practised for nearly 30 years, graduated from the highly respected University of Birmingham in 1986, having studied a variety of specialities including: Human Psychology, Psychiatry, Surgery and Dermatology. Dr Khan continues to make bounds in the arena of cosmetic treatment, recently being recognised for by the British Armed Forces for his reconstructive finesse.

Meanwhile, Lesley Reynolds, helps put the world's skincare to rights as a columnist and contributor for many national publications including The Express, The Daily Mail & Best Magazine. Lesley's background ranges from reflexology and aromatherapy to anti-ageing and acne, assisting the thousands in recognising their true skincare potential.

Together, this cosmetic tour de force seek to enhance your own beauty, rather than creating a new, unfamiliar face.
